

I was at an event recently where someone was slighted. It was a pretty big deal and the persons slighted took it really personally. Unfortunately, the slight became a huge part of the event resulting in some hard feelings, bad memories and lost opportunities for human connections.

When I returned home from this event there was a new bumper sticker ready to be stuck to my car. Steve had picked it up at a concert he attended while I was away. In big white letters against a royal blue background the words "RESPOND WITH LOVE" seemed to shout out at me.

RESPOND WITH LOVE.

And I wondered, what would have happened if, at this event, those words would have been our guiding principle?

Yes, people were emotionally hurt. Yes, women were disrespected. Yes, there was cause for concern. Yet, I wonder, what if, instead of becoming all defensive and righteous; what if people had responded with love. Love for self, i.e., I don't deserve this type of treatment? Love for the other, i.e., I wonder what is causing this person to respond to me this way? Love for the enemy, i.e., I wonder if there is something about me that threatens this person?

I wonder how the story would have been different had Love narrated the conversation rather than suspicion, perceived hatred and threat?

RESPOND WITH LOVE

It isn't easy. Particularly when people are being threatened and demeaned for the color of their skin, the origins of their birth, their sexual identity, their economic status, their gender, their being...any number of things. It isn't easy. Because it all seems so personal.

Yet, it is what we are called to do by the One who responded to love when others spit on him, questioned his authority, stripped him naked in the streets shaming him to the uttermost, derided him, and killed him as a common criminal. And this humiliating, devastatingly awful, death became for us LIFE. Because instead of responding to us with hatred for all that we do to God's children every day of our lives, God responded to us with love. And gave us our life back. Saying to us that there is NOTHING we can do, even killing God's Son, that will make God stop loving us. There is nothing you can do to me that will cause me to stop loving you. I will always.

RESPOND WITH LOVE

So where does that leave us? Who claim to follow the call of God in our lives? What response is our response? Even when it seems ridiculous.

Even when it seems as if we deserve to be mad.

Even when it is right for us to be offended.

Even when it seems right to hate.

RESPOND WITH LOVE

I keep wondering how my event would have been different. I keep wondering how our world would be different. I keep wondering if we could make that our motto. I wonder...

Hope and Peace, Pastor Debra

LIVING THE SEASON AT HOME

February 3, 2019

Jeremiah 9:24b; 22-35

YHWH God says: Act with justice and integrity: rescue the victim from the oppressor; do not oppress or mistreat resident aliens or the orphaned or widowed, and don't shed innocent blood in this place.

Something to think about:

What are things you value most?

How, if at all, does this scripture passage challenge you to rethink the contents of this list?

What does this passage tell us that God values most?

Prayer: Help me God, to love you with my whole self so that my values and your values may be in alignment.

February 10, 2019

Luke 5:1–11

And when they brought their boats to shore, they left everything and followed him.

Something to think about, talk about or do

It was during their everyday living that many people encountered Jesus. God calls each of us to follow, to serve. And God believes that we are good enough – all of us. We are part of God's surprising catch.

Prayer: God, show me today how I might serve you.

February 17, 2019

Luke 6:17–26

Coming down the mountain with them, Jesus stopped in a level area where there were a great number of disciples.

Something to think about

Imagine the world that Jesus is talking about. It's a world of generosity, love, life, compassion.

Prayer: God, what do we need to let go of or change so that Your reign can be a blessing for all?

February 24, 2019

Luke 6:27–38

"Be compassionate, as your loving God is compassionate.

Something to think about

Jesus turns our focus from trying to be perfect to a life of compassion. As we grow into the people God imagines us to be, as we follow the commandments and the way of Jesus, let us remember that what we will become is more beautiful than what we can imagine because it is God who has created us.

Prayer: Help me be more compassionate in one way today God, so that I can be more like you.

United Methodist agencies: 2018 was productive year

By Jim Patterson

Jan. 23, 2019 | Nashville, Tenn. (UMNS)

The 13 agencies of The United Methodist Church had an industrious 2018, and all of them are pursuing ambitious goals this year.

The Board of Church and Society released a first draft of an updated Social Principles, the prayerful and thoughtful effort of General Conference to speak to the issues in the contemporary world from a sound biblical and theological foundation. Led by the Rev. Mary Elizabeth Moore, dean of Boston University School of Theology, the team is now working on a new draft after receiving comments and suggestions from across the denomination.

The Board of Discipleship distributed more than 25,000 of its “See All the People” guide to winning new disciples for Jesus Christ. The program also used study booklets, films and training events to assist local churches in developing a discipleship program. This year, plans call for continuing the effort to place an intentional disciple-making process in every church and to engage people currently outside the church.

The Board of Global Ministries assisted in the release of three missionaries from the Philippines detained by the government, and its United Methodist Committee on Relief continued massive rehabilitation efforts to deal with damage caused by hurricanes in Puerto Rico and the Gulf Coast of the U.S. The Manila Agency Center opened Dec. 18 in collaboration with United Methodist Communications as a base for general agency work in the Philippines Central Conference. In 2019, the agency continues to focus on the Abundant Health initiative, which has the goal of providing life-saving intervention to a million children by 2020.

The Board of Higher Education and Ministry solidified plans in 2018 to establish a Center for Leadership and Spiritual Formation. The higher education and ministry agency is researching the competencies that leaders will need and exploring ways of providing these services through a range of means, such as face-to-face training, online conferencing, consulting and recommending resources and experts. In 2019, the agency plans to develop resources for collegiate ministers to assist them in helping students tend to their emotional well-being.

The Commission on Religion and Race hosted the Facing the Future conference May 7-9 in Newark, New Jersey, where about 300 pastors learned ways to connect with diverse churchgoers when the demographics of a neighborhood change. The agency’s Vital Conversations 4: Race, Culture, the Church, and Human Sexuality video study course engaged people of color and people in Africa and the Philippines more prominently in the church’s discourse about the status and role of LGBTQ people. For 2019, the Religion and Race Commission plans to launch a new campaign, “We Are Becoming,” about leaders and churches reaching across lines of difference.

The Commission on the Status and Role of Women, energized by the growth of the #MeToo movement in 2018, put together a toolkit of resources to help churches and faith groups go forward with good sexual ethics policies. The commission plans to cultivate more relationships in 2019 in order to get its resources out to more United Methodists.

The Commission on United Methodist Men expanded its use of principles found in the book “The Class Meeting” to reinvigorate its meetings. The center is using the same techniques with “Amending Through Faith,” an eight-week course addressing domestic violence. The course is the result of a partnership with the YWCA and other agencies. In 2019, United Methodist Men will help facilitate several large events, including a denominational leadership meeting in Nashville in March and the 24th annual Scouting Jamboree in West Virginia in July.

The Commission on Archives and History encouraged United Methodists to celebrate the 50th anniversary of The United Methodist Church on Aldersgate Day (May 24) or the Sunday preceding that date. The incentive was to remind members of the denomination's DNA and ethos as it prepares for a momentous special session of the General Conference. The agency plans to continue promoting and caring for the historical interests of the denomination in 2019.

The General Council on Finance and Administration developed a new brand and website, UMC Support. The new moniker acknowledges that service to United Methodists and their institutions is at the core of the finance agency's mission. Its goal this year is to maintain the high caliber of administrative support and services to the church with easily accessible, downloadable resources.

United Methodist Communications implemented new technologies for web content, contact management and marketing automation. These technologies will reduce costs, provide multilingual content and streamline communication channels. In 2019, the agency will continue working toward building a comprehensive communication strategy and overcoming any fragmentation that exists in denomination messaging and communications.

The United Methodist Publishing House in 2018 conducted deep research on customer needs, working collaboratively with church leaders to test new methods and materials, employing emerging digital technologies for better service and reinventing internal processes to achieve gains in quality and efficiency. In 2019, plans call for an updated Cokesbury.com to improve the e-commerce experience and the testing of a mobile Bible study app.

United Methodist Women trained more than 6,000 women on interrupting the school-to-prison pipeline and helping to stem climate change from a faith-based perspective at its quadrennial assembly in Columbus, Ohio. In 2019, UMW plans to mark its 150th anniversary with celebrations, recruit new members and mobilize women for action that is spiritually nurturing.

Wespath Benefits and Investments is integral to the preparations for the special called session of General Conference, set for Feb. 23-26 in St. Louis. It is supplying information on how the results of the General Conference might affect pensions and other monetary concerns. Going forward, Wespath is working to design new benefit plan proposals.

Special Session of General Conference 2019

Some of you have asked about the General Conference Session coming up February 23. The January/February 2019 Response Magazine of the UMW has a concise article outlining the plans and the actions that will be on the floor during the session.

Here is their excellent summary of what will happen during the General Conference Session written by Tara Barnes:

“Unlike the usual duration of 10 days, this special session of General Conference will last only three, and the legislation being voted on will be limited to the three plans proposed by the Commission on a Way Forward as well as others deemed in harmony with the conference’s purpose. The Commission on the General Conference, a global group of clergy and laity who plan the conferences, met in early October 2018 to set the plan for the February special session.

The process and schedule approved by the Commission on General Conference includes a day of prayer and preparation on February 23, followed by a presentation from the Commission on a Way Forward to start of the first day of the conference February 24. The first day will also include plenary discussion to determine the plan(s) with which the delegates will move forward. On February 25 delegates will offer amendments and vote on petitions. On the final day, Tuesday February 26, delegates will take final votes and make plans for the next regular General Conference, to take place in 2020 in Minneapolis.

General Conference is the only body that can speak for The United Methodist Church. Delegates to General Conference are elected at their annual conferences. The delegates comprise equal members of clergy and lay, and the delegate count for each conference is based on the number of clergy and professing lay members of the conference in a formula laid out by The Book of Discipline.

The conference meets every four years to set denominational policy, revise church law, approve budgets for churchwide programs and adopt resolutions on current moral, social, public policy and economic issues.

The outcome of this special session of General Conference cannot be predicted. What it means for your local church, the global church or United Methodist Women won’t be known until General Conference votes on a plan.” Response Magazine January/February 2019

This last sentence is very important. Until the conference vote we will not know what this General Conference will mean for us. And even then, we may not know because depending on the outcome of the vote, there may be challenges to the vote and other formal actions needed to put a plan in place.

In the meantime, and throughout my ministry here at Chatfield UMC, we will be committed to being a church that is open to EVERYONE no matter where they are in their faith journey, what their gender identity or sexual orientation is, how Christian they feel or don’t feel...

So, while I am concerned for my denomination, I am not concerned for US. You and I will continue to do a ministry of radical hospitality and invite anyone else to come alongside us in that ministry.

The General Conference special session will be live-streamed at UMC.org/gc2019. Copies of the daily editions of the Daily Christian Advocate will also be available in .pdf format for free download at UMC.org/gc2019. United Methodist News Service, UMNews.org, will provide full coverage of the event.

State of the Church—2018—Chatfield UMC

This church we are a part of is vital and important in the community and the world. If something happened to us, we would be missed. We gather together as over 200 souls both within the walls of the church and in the community. We act and serve in mission locally and globally.

It is hard to give a snap shot of this vital ministry. We have over 40 different ministries that come from within our walls, everything from Food to Quilts to Medical Equipment Loans to Blood Drives to Christmas Gifts to Environmental Education to Children's Ministries to Visual Arts.

All of this is, of course, funded by generous donations and grants.

This year, we did not meet our expenses. While we are not without funds to operate, we are running a deficit. Which means that in order to keep on doing what we are called to do, we must keep on giving! And giving even more.

Please, please, please, give as you are able! Give as if this community and the world depends on what we do together. Give as if we are together finding a way to speak and be Light in the darkness. Give and be a part of something so much bigger than you could ever imagine.
